Key challenges

We have identified two challenges for the next couple of years:

- 1) Make sure we have enough competent people to act as e CJ and EJ.
- 2) Make sure live judging is quick and accurate. To achieve this, Judges need more training before each competition, and/or we need to make DY easier to judge.

Work during 2022

2nd European Indoor Skydiving Championships and 4th World Cup of Indoor Skydiving, April 5-10 Airspace, Charleroi, Belgium

| - Dynamic Flying D4W | 10 teams / 56 flights |
| - Dynamic Flying Junior D2W | 3 teams / 15 flights |
| - Dynamic Flying Junior D4W | 2 teams / 12 flights |

Total of 13 NAC's

The technical side of the competition worked very well, the organizer had done a great job with setting up the judging systems. Uploading videos by the teams into the FAI cloud failed for an unknown reason and we had to use WeTransfer for that, adding some unexpected organization time for this process.

The judging worked okay, but some judges used their right to review the flights too frequently. This is detrimental to the audience and flyers if the result of the review is different from that of the live judging (lights go off in the tunnel when the flyers bust). We are discussing solutions to this challenge.

The committee continues to improve the competition rules by simplifying them when possible and by improving them according to the feedback from the judges and the competitors especially after Charleroi and the national competitions.

Communication

We have held monthly electronic meetings during the year, only pausing for the 3 summer months. For most meetings we have an agenda and record the minutes. This has helped us track the rule changes, and has significantly reduced the workload in the weeks leading up to, and during, the Plenary meetings.

Judges

We currently have 12 Category 1 DY Judges, and 3 Category 2 DY Judges.

Future competitions

2023: 4th FAI World Indoor Skydiving Championships, Liptovsky Mikulas, Slovakia, April 21st – 23rd

2024: 3rd FAI European Indoor Skydiving Championships and the 5th FAI World Cup of Indoor Skydiving, Macau (Hong Kong NAC)

Due to major changes in the GS, cross-references will have to be checked once the final version of the GS is issued this coming January.

Budget 2022/2023

We did not spend the budget in 2022, and we don't foresee any costs in 2023.

Thank you to the members of the Committee for all your hard work.
